Teenagers sentenced for wrecking Summer's garden

Shocking CCTV images showed vandalism to area in memory of tragic youngster

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

FOUR teenagers have admitted damaging a school's memorial garden, constructed in tribute to a seven-year-old girl who died in Harlow.

Summer Grant died in March 2016 when a bouncy castle she was playing on in Harlow Town Park blew away in high winds.

Valley Primary Academy, in Summer's home city of Norwich, released shocking CCTV images showing four boys tipping over flower boxes and hurling a car tyre into the garden.

The gang was caught brazenly vandalising the memorial in May this year before throwing bricks and drawing swear words in the primary school's play area.

Compensation

At Norwich Magistrates' Court on Thursday, Connor Rothwell, 18, from Norwich, was handed a youth rehabilitation order, fined £240, and ordered to pay £100 in compensation, £30 in victim surcharges and court costs of £85.

Three other boys, who cannot be named for legal reasons, were also sentenced at the same hearing.

One lad, 17, was given a youth rehabilitation order with a supervision requirement and an activity requirement at an attendance centre.

Two boys, one 16 and one 17, were referred to the youth offending team for six months.

They were also each ordered to pay £100 in compensation, £20 in victim surcharges and court costs of £85.

Horried

Sara Bush, the school's head teacher, said: "We had an assembly to explain it to the children and it was the quietest assembly I have ever done, we are horrified."

"There were little wooden planters with pots inside. They had pulled the plants and contents out."

"It is very hard for the family."

Some 200 people paid tribute to Summer at a vigil held in the Town Park in April last year.

Two fairground workers, Shelby Thurston, 25, and William Thurston, 28, have denied gross negligence manslaughter and failing to discharge health and safety duties.

The Ely pair will stand trial at Chelmsford Crown Court next year.

M11 COLLISIONS: Police to see if there are issues with road or drivers to blame

Emergency services on the scene of a fatal crash on the M11 recently

Death crashes prompt motorway safety probe

By Matthew Mohan-Hickson
matthew.hickson@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ESSEX Police have launched an investigation into safety issues on the M11 after there have been three fatal accidents on the road since January.

Figures from Essex Police show that they have attended 64 collisions on the M11 between junction five, near Chigwell and junction nine, which is north of Saffron Walden, since the beginning of the year.

Three of those collisions resulted in a fatality, while nine more were classed as serious.

Since July 1, 2017 there have been two fatal crashes and three more which needed the air ambulance.

On August 31, a motorcyclist in his 50s was killed in a crash near junction seven for Harlow while Andrew Brett, of Sible Hedingham, was killed in an unexplained incident on August 9 when a piece of concrete hit his car near Birchanger.

Patients

An air ambulance was also deployed to the M11 on August 11, July 9, and July 4 to treat patients involved in non-fatal collisions.

On May 23, a motorcyclist was killed in an accident on the exit sliproad of the M11 at junction six.

Police are still analysing the data from the accidents to see if there are any issues with the road or whether driver behaviour is the main factor in the incidents.

Adam Pipe, casualty reduction manager at Essex Police, said: "I would like to highlight our genuine concern at the recent apparent high number of road traffic collisions on the M11, particularly between junctions six and eight.

"Since January of this year, there have been 64 collisions on the M11, attended by our Roads Policing Unit.

"Of these, 52 were minor RTCs, while nine were serious. In total, there have been very sadly three fatal collisions.

"We are examining our data, in an attempt to identify causation factors.

"Subject to these findings, we will work with colleagues at Highways England on introducing measures to mitigate any identified risks, including enhanced patrols targeting any driving behaviour, which may be leading to an increase in collisions.

Priority

"The M11 remains a priority for Essex Police and regularly attracts enforcement activity including significant road crime and road safety operations at Junction 7, with such operations focussed on mitigating the risk of harm."

CCTV PLEA

POLICE investigating a fatal crash on the M11 near Harlow have released CCTV footage to try and identify drivers who may have witnessed it.

A motorcyclist died following a collision with a car at around 11.35am on Thursday, August 31.

Footage pinpoints the drivers officers want to speak to and they include any car that was using the stretch of road in the minutes prior to the crash.

Essex Police confirmed that the motorcyclist, a man in his 50s from Nottingham, sadly died at the scene after colliding with the car.

Junction seven on the southbound carriageway leading to the M25 was completely closed while emergency services dealt with the incident.

Officers from Highways England, police and ambulance crews and an air ambulance all attended the scene, causing 13 miles of the road to be affected in total.

All lanes on the road were closed for up to five hours, causing heavy delays which caused disruptions until later on in the evening.

Acting Detective Sergeant James Lee, from the Serious Collision Investigation Unit, said: "It's really important that we speak to these drivers as they may have seen the crash and have information that will assist the investigation team.

"The quality of the footage isn't the best but if you know you were driving along that stretch of the M11 at that time and you think one of the cars highlighted is yours, then please get in contact.

"A man sadly lost his life and it is crucial we establish what happened."

■ Anyone with any information, or dashcam footage, is asked to contact the Serious Collision Investigation Unit on 01245 240590 or email collisionappeal@essex.pnn.police.uk.

MP vows to raise 'huge concerns' at Westminster

AN MP is going to raise safety issues about the M11 to central Government after two fatal crashes and three serious crashes since the beginning of July.

Robert Halfon, MP for Harlow, said that he has "huge concerns" about the safety on the M11 after a number of serious accidents.

Mr Halfon said: "I have huge concerns about increased traffic and accidents on the M11.

"As someone who regularly travels to work on the M11 like many Harlow motorists, it is clear that the traffic and road usage is an every increasing problem.

"Whilst the millions invested by the Government in the new Junction 7A will help matters, I will be contacting the police, roads minister and highway authorities to see why this is happening - and what more can be done in terms of traffic and road safety."

Since July, two people have been killed while the air ambulance was deployed on three different occasions to the M11 because of accidents.

On August 31, a motorcyclist in his 50s was killed in a crash near junction seven for Harlow while Andrew Brett, of Sible Hedingham, was killed in an unexplained incident on August 9 when a piece of concrete hit his car near Birchanger.

'Town in good shape to fight its corner'

ROBERT Halfon has promised to fight to bring infrastructure to Harlow in his new role as vice-chairman of the new towns Parliamentary group.

Alongside a cross-party group of members of Parliament, the Harlow MP will consider the needs of authorities across the country.

Mr Halfon, who retained his seat in the General Election in June, said building a new Princess Alexandra Hospital (PAH) in Harlow is one of his priorities.

Similar

He said: "This group is really important because a lot of the issues facing new towns are similar across the country and working together we can achieve a lot more."

"My hope is to build an even better Harlow, including getting a new hospital built. I recently met with the chief executive of Harlow Council and the chief executive of Princess Alexandra Hospital so that we can work together locally on this, too."

"My involvement in the group will allow me to give Harlow a strong voice and I will keep working hard to get us the investment we need."

Two are facing jail terms after brutal stab attack on man

Victim suffered life-changing eye injury in assault

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

TWO men are likely to face jail after a horrific attack in Harlow which left a man with a life-changing eye injury.

Charlie Knight, 20, of Broadgate, Spalding, pleaded guilty to wounding with intent in an incident in The Downs, Harlow, on January 26.

Wounds

In the attack, a 25-year-old man suffered serious stab wounds and was taken to hospital in a critical condition.

The victim has been left with a permanent eye injury, but the motive behind

Both 20-year-olds will be sentenced next month at Chelmsford Crown Court the attack is unclear. Knight will be sentenced on October 27 in Chelmsford Crown Court alongside Osa Akpata, 20, of North-ate End, Bishop's Stortford, who has been found guilty of attempted murder this week.

Detective sergeant Mick Orr said: "This is a horrific attack where a man has been left with a life-changing injury."

Verdict

"We hope this verdict is some consolation to the suffering he has endured during the last few months."

During Akpata's trial the court heard a claw hammer was brandished and that police linked him to the crime from CCTV footage because of his distinctive monobrow.

Inquest opened after body of man reported missing is found in town's McAlpine Park

A MAN was found dead in McAlpine Park in Harlow after he was reported missing the day before.

Adam Longley, 30, from Northbrooks, Harlow, was reported missing at around 11.50am on August 24.

He had a history of depression and there were concerns for his wellbeing.

At around 9.30am on the same day, Essex Police confirmed a sighting of him in Tesco in Harvey Centre, Harlow, and released a still image from CCTV in a bid to locate his whereabouts.

Police ended their search when the body of a man was found in McAlpine Park, Harlow, the following day (August 25). An inquest opening into the death of Mr Longley was held today (September 6) at the Essex Coroners Court in Chelmsford.

Mr Longley's body can now be released and a full inquest hearing will be held at Essex Coroners Court on October 24.

Optician saves pensioner with a rare eye condition

Eagle-eyed optometrist sends 72-year-old to hospital in nick of time

By William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

A HARLOW optician's quick thinking saved a woman with a rare eye condition from developing a stroke or blindness.

Vipul Jyoti, 25, sent an elderly woman to hospital after correctly spotting she had giant cell arteritis (GCA) during her check-up at Rose Opticians in the Harvey Centre.

Princess Alexandra Hospital's emergency department confirmed 72-year-old Jennifer Driscoll had come in just in time for treatment.

Life

A year after he may have saved the life of another patient by spotting she had rare but potentially fatal intracranial hypertension, Mr Jyoti has asked patients to look after their eyes.

The optician, who lives in Redbridge, London, said: "The woman had blurry vision in her left eye and said she had felt weird the past few days.

"It turned out she had GCA.

"It is a serious condition, it can lead to permanent blindness and increases the risk of neurosis and strokes.

"She was going to have an eye test and did not feel right. I had to ask a few questions like 'does it hurt when you chew?' and she said yes to all of them.

"She went to A&E the same day.

"They said she does have GCA. Her risk of stroke was very high and the hospital was extremely concerned."

Article

Since an article appeared in the Harlow Star last October, Mr Jyoti has seen two more cases of intracranial hypertension.

And despite just one in 5,000 people getting GCA, the optician urged residents to be checked out for vision problems.

He added: "There are lots of health conditions that can affect vision, diabetes is the main one.

"Arthritis and its medication can affect vision as well.

"(When we see people with vision problems) finding spectacles is actually the last thing on our list.

"We have to make sure we stay up to date so that if we see someone has a condition we do not miss it."

Pub chain to lower prices for one day

PRICES at Harlow JD Wetherspoon will be lowered for one day only as pub bosses make a political point.

All food and drink at the William Aylmer in Kitson Way will be 7.5 per cent less than normal next Wednesday, which is Tax Equality Day.

Helen Mills, pub manager, explained the move was to show the chain's support for a VAT reduction on the hospitality industry.

She said: "We are proud to support the campaign to reduce the level of VAT within the pub industry.

Drink

"Customers coming to the pub on Wednesday, September 20, will find the price of their food and drink is lower than normal.

"We are keen to highlight the amount customers could save if VAT in pubs was lowered permanently.

"A reduction in the level of VAT on a long-term basis will generate growth and create jobs in the important leisure and hospitality sector and help the high street, of which pubs are an integral part."

John Hutson, chief executive of JD Wetherspoon, was a key campaigner to leave the European Union and recently was photographed with Harlow Ukip councillor Dan Long.

ARKADIUSZ JOZWIK: Shockwaves from 2016 attack which caused a 40-year-old

Youth gets three years detention for crime

THE 16-year-old boy who struck Arkadiusz Jozwik on the back of the head with a 'superman' punch before he was killed has been sentenced to three years in a youth detention centre.

Mr Jozwik was killed on August 29 last year after he suffered skull fractures and brain injuries following an incident with a group of youths at The Stow Shopping Centre in Harlow. A 16-year-old, who cannot be named for legal reasons, was sentenced to three years in a youth detention centre for manslaughter at Chelmsford Crown Court.

He entered the courtroom wearing a white shirt with a black tie. As he sat in the dock, all that could be seen of the defendant was from his nose to the top of his head, due to his small stature.

Prosecuting, Rosina Cottage QC, told the court that the defendant had committed offences after the death of Mr Jozwik. On December 2, he was found in possession of an offensive weapon, half a knuckle-duster.

On March 24, he was convicted of using threatening, abusive and insulting language on November 21. He was conditionally discharged for both offences.

Ms Cottage then preceded to read out statements from both Mr Jozwik's brother Radek and his mother Ava.

Radek wrote: "I could not come to terms with Arek's death and did not want to continue living myself. This has been overwhelming for my family."

Actions

Ms Cottage admitted that the intentions of the young man were not to cause serious harm to the victim, but his actions came with serious consequences.

"The crown accept that he had no intention to cause very serious harm to the deceased and did not intend the consequence of his actions.

However, using the force he did he must have been aware that some harm would have been likely," she said.

"It is accepted by the crown that the deceased and his friend were affected by alcohol and approaching the youths at all was seen as unnecessary."

Patrick Upward, mitigating for the defendant, told the court that altercation began because of the drunk actions of Mr Jozwik and his companion.

He said: "No-one who has read or heard the victim statements could deter that the man they spoke of was a hard-working, warm, and affectionate son, brother and uncle.

"One of the unusual advantages of this case was that there was a trial. Far from being the all affectionate individual of those that knew him, the deceased and his companion, according to witnesses, were staggering from drink. They made racist remarks to the youths and invited violence from those youngsters and they were considerably bigger and stronger than the young people. It was after the deceased pushed one of the youngsters that this defendant did what he did."

Death tragedy inspires police effort to reach out to Polish community

By Richard Duggan
star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE death of Arkadiusz Jozwik at the hands of a teenage boy sent shock waves through the community in Harlow last year.

The Polish national, who was known as Arek, was sent crashing to the floor after being punched in the back of the head following an altercation with a group of youths in The Stow on August 27, 2016.

His subsequent death from a severe brain injury sent ripples through the community and caused Essex Police to reevaluate their relationship with Polish people in the area.

His attacker, a 16-year-old who cannot be named for legal reasons, was sentenced to three years in a Youth Detention Centre last Friday (September 8).

Friends

On the night of the attack, Mr Jozwik had been drinking with two friends before arriving at the shopping centre at around 10pm.

The three men sat on a bench drinking alcohol close to a group of teenagers who had been hanging around the area for most of the day.

At around 11.25pm, Mr Jozwik and Radek Koscelski walked over to one of the boys on another bench and an exchange of words took place – though it is not clear what was said.

Five minutes later, Mr Jozwik's killer and two others arrived back at the parade on their bicycles.

Two of the eventual defendant's friends rode close to the Polish group which appeared to spark an argument.

During the heated confrontation which led to Mr Koscelski falling to the ground, Mr Jozwik was unaware that one of the boys had sneaked around the group so that he could land a punch.

The blow to the back of Mr Jozwik's head sent him crashing to the ground and he suffered a

Friends and family of Arek Jozwik at a memorial for him brain injury and a fractured skull.

He died in Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge, just two days later.

Although police initially treated 40-year-old Mr Jozwik's death as murder, the teenager who assaulted Mr Jozwik was eventually charged with manslaughter on December 1 and was convicted by a jury at Chelmsford Crown Court on July 31.

Initial information

Harlow is a safe place to live, says Chief Inspector Matt Cornish provided to officers suggested Mr Jozwik may have been the victim of a hate crime, sparking controversy in the wake of the Brexit referendum.

As the investigation continued, it became apparent to officers that there was no evidence to suggest that there was a racially aggravated motive.

Despite this, Mr Jozwik's death will remain recorded as a hate crime.

Shocked

Speaking shortly before the sentencing, Harlow district commander chief inspector Matt Cornish said: "Mr Jozwik's death last year left residents of our town deeply shocked and my thoughts remain with his family and friends.

"Tragic incidents such as these are extremely rare and Harlow remains a safe place to live, with a strong and resilient community.

Arek Jozwik was killed last year

"We have been working closely with residents, the Polish community and community leaders to listen to, and address, their concerns.

"A large amount of work has gone into tackling anti-social behaviour and crime, and this will carry on to ensure people feel safe and confident in reporting incidents to us."

DCI Cornish also feels the force has a better understanding of the Polish community since Mr Jozwik died.

"It got us thinking that perhaps we weren't as entwined with our community as we needed to be," he said.

"So with the help of the Polish police we actually really got ourselves into The Stow and started breaking down barriers and starting engaging with the local community and produced a 12 week plan to understand and listen to their concerns and react to them with our partners."

DCI Cornish feels the 12-week plan has been successful but there is still room for improvement.

Anyone in Harlow who feels they have been subjected to a hate crime and does not want to go to the police directly, is now able to voice their concerns at any one of nine Hate Incident Reporting Centres (HIRC) around the town.

As a result of HIRC, the number of hate crimes reported has skyrocketed by around 85 per cent, with 175 reports being made between August 2016 and July 2017.

In addition to tackling hate crime, the force have been working with the council to try and better the area by installing CCTV, improving street lighting and repairing paving slabs.

Officers have also been able to issue six anti-social behaviour contracts and one criminal behaviour order against local troublemakers thanks to the new and improved reporting system.

But DCI Cornish is set in his view that just because youths are hanging around in public, they are not necessarily engaged in criminality.

"We were all children once, we've all played football on the streets," he said.

Damaging

"That doesn't necessarily mean it's causing issues or is a criminal offence. What we need to be looking at from the police and community side is, the anti-social behaviour that's damaging people or causing harm, because that's what we're here to prevent.

"We're not here to criminalise children, or to stop children being children.

"But we are here to stop gang activity or damage or oppressing vulnerable people because that just isn't right and that's where the police will step in."

SENTENCING REMARKS: What the judge said in court

JUDGE Patricia Lynch, who asked the defendant to remain seated as he she summed up the facts before sentencing him, expressed the tragedy of not only Mr Jozwik's death, but also sentencing a young man.

She said: "The victim of your crime was a perfectly decent, upstanding person who lived mainly in his prime.

"It was a tragic death and his family has suffered as a result of it.

"They have told me through their statements that they sat through the trial and that they gained some sort of comfort from the jury's finding of guilty.

"But it follows that anything that I may say or do, any sentence I note, can't make up for the massive loss they have suffered and live with for the rest of their lives.

"The case is also a tragic one not only because of his death, but because I could have to sentence a young man who is but 16 years-of-age.

"It goes without saying this is a very serious offence, and Mr Upward urges me to take a bold step and not pass a custodial sentence. I say straight away, that this is a very serious matter which clearly crosses the custodial threshold."

Judge Lynch QC sentenced the young defendant to three years in youth detention.

As he got up to be taken away into custody, his family told him that they loved him as they wiped away tears.

man to die in hospital reverberate as judge sentences youth for manslaughter

Grieving mum: 'I did not even have a chance to say goodbye'

THE mother of a Polish man who died at the hands of a teenage boy in Harlow has released a heartbreaking statement following the sentencing of his killer.

Arkadiusz Jozwik, known as Arek, was assaulted by a 16-year-old, who cannot be named for legal reasons, in The Stow on August 27 last year.

The 40-year-old Polish national suffered a brain injury and a fractured skull. He never regained consciousness and died in Addenbrooke's Hospital, Cambridge, on August 29.

Manslaughter

The defendant, then aged 15, was arrested and later charged with manslaughter following consultation with the Crown Prosecution Service.

He denied the offence and stood trial at Chelmsford Crown Court before being convicted by a jury last month.

Last Friday, the 16-year-old killer was sentenced to three years in detention for Mr Jozwik's manslaughter.

Speaking after the hearing, Mr Jozwik's mother, Ewa Jozwik, said: "I cannot come to terms that my loving son is no longer with us.

"All the time I can see in my mind the moment I saw him lying motionless in the hospital

More than 100 people attending a memorial and spreading of Arek Jozwik ashes the day after his funeral bed connected to the life support machine.

"I wanted him to wake up so badly.

"I think about him every day, I wish he could be with us. In moments like this I cannot hold back my tears. When I think about him, I always cry.

"He was healthy, a good person, and no-one had the right to take his life in such a way.

"The last year has been very difficult for our whole family.

"If not for my other son Radek, his wife and kids, I would not be able to cope.

"I came to England when my husband passed away.

"Arek followed shortly because he did not want to be in Poland alone.

"In the beginning we were living together and then my son found a place of his own nearby.

"He would visit often, come round for dinners and we would be inseparable.

"I know Arek was happy here. He felt at home in Harlow and he did not want to go back to Poland.

"He wanted to stay here and he is buried here.

Calm

"At his funeral, people who knew him remembered him as a good, calm person. 'You were a dream, now you are a memory' are the words we placed on his gravestone.

"I do not wish upon any mother to have to bury her son and go through what I went through.

"Sometimes I think about the day he died.

"I remember our phone conversation when everything was fine, he was with his friends and finishing painting.

"The next day when I rang him, he did not answer.

"I deeply regret I did not even have a chance to say goodbye."

Mould is making our life hell, says family

11-month-old son has developed chest infections

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A MOTHER is upset her mouldy council house which is 'making her baby cough like a chain smoker', has not been cleaned.

Rachel Bridger, 28, pays rent to Harlow Council for her property in Little Parndon, Harlow, but one year after raising concerns the unpleasant blight remains.

The mum-of-three is particularly concerned for her poorly 11-month-old baby Oliver who is allergic to penicillium, a substance found in mould spots, and has developed chest infections.

Wheezy

She said: "My baby sounds like someone who smokes a million cigarettes a day, he is so wheezy."

"He has recurrent infections and has been extremely poorly since he was born."

"He is really ill and has been back and forth to hospital."

"The (medical) expert has told me that the house is making my child ill."

For five years Rachel has lived in the flat with husband Martin and their other children Leah, ten, and Mason, five.

The mould is visible on a windowsill

She complained her house 'constantly' smells of mould and wood rot is causing cracking along the walls. The problem has become more of a priority since the birth and ill-health of Oliver.

According to Rachel, a window in the house is falling out while staff from council contractor HTS and predecessor company Kier have inspected but taken little action.

"I have been battling with Harlow Council," she continued.

"Kier and HTS have come out three or four times. They measure up windows, they come out to do it and then don't. A year has gone by."

"They say it's on the five year plan to be sorted. My house con-

Mould on the ceiling

stantly smells and this whole situation has massively impacted my mental health, I suffer with anxiety."

On Oliver's latest trip to the emergency department a consultant told Rachel that mould may worsen his breathing problems.

She said: "On Monday he ended up at the doctors for a chest infection. He was prescribed Piriton medication to help the allergies from the mould spores and another asthma pump."

A Harlow Council spokesman said: "We are treating this case as a priority and we are in regular contact with the family to keep them updated."

Surveyor

"This week a surveyor and housing officer visited the property and arranged for a number of specialist surveys and inspections to be carried out. Most of these will be carried out this week."

"Once we have the results from these we will look at what further support we need to offer to the family."

"HTS has also undertaken a temporary repair to the window and following the visit from officers other repairs have been requested."

"The window replacement programme for the block will begin this financial year and a request has been made to prioritise this particular property on that programme."

Deflated tyre 'could have led to grandad's fatal motorbike crash'

Inquest hears possible reason for rider's loss of control

By Sophie Finnegan
star@hertsexnews.co.uk

A GRANDFATHER of four who was killed when he rode into a crash barrier on the M11 at Harlow could have lost control because of a deflated tyre, an inquest has heard.

Alan Hazzledine, 59, was riding his motorbike while travelling from Junction 6 (Harlow) of the M11 onto Junction 27 of the M25 when he lost control on a sharp left-hand bend on May 23.

He had been travelling with a friend to Belgium for a trip away when the crash happened.

He was taken to Princes Alexandra hospital in Harlow, where he was pronounced dead.

A post-mortem examination was carried out and the cause of death was found to be tears to the heart, bruising of the lungs and multiple rib fractures due to a road traffic collision.

The toxicology report showed that there were no drugs or alcohol in his system.

PC Burke, who attended the scene about two hours after the collision, told the inquest: "The road surface was dry and the sun was high in the sky, which would not have caused a problem. He travelled down the M11 and exited Junction 6 to join the M25, which separates into two lanes and he took the near-side lane towards the M25.

"The two lanes take a sweeping left-hand bend."

Other vehicles were travelling on that slip road at about 50mph and the motorcycle was travelling at a similar speed.

On inspecting the bike, PC Burke found that it had a deflated tyre that could have contributed to the crash.

Difficult

PC Burke continued: "The motorcycle understeered as it left the slip road and with an under-inflated tyre it was even more difficult to control it."

"He came into contact with the barrier and the motorcycle slid along it, leaving some paint deposits and continued under the bridge. The offside handlebar also came off, making it harder to break."

"He was propelled over the bike and landed on the ground and sadly died from his injuries."

"He had low pressure previously in his tyre but it was re-inflated and he passed his MoT."

"The visor was up, which is unusual, but he could have had an insect in it or he could have wanted some fresh air."

"He could have felt unwell or it is possible the deflated tyre had been a contributing factor in reducing the control of the motorbike."

Mr Hazzledine was travelling with his friend Mark Miller, who was riding on his motorbike ahead.

Mr Miller said: "He didn't seem him himself really, he was a little peaky or under the weather but I don't know if I was just clutching at straws."

Coroner Caroline Beesley-Murray said: "No one knows exactly what would have been going through his mind as he went round that bend. He was clearly a much-loved man after seeing your statements and I express my condolences to you."

His wife Lynn called him a "loving and kind" man who left behind two daughters, two stepchildren and four grandchildren.

Lynn said: "He was known as Cheeky Grandad, they absolutely adored him. He was such a big support to his mum who is 85 years old."

"At his funeral there was just a sea of red because of his favourite team, Nottingham Forest, he was such a popular man."

"He just made my life amazing. He just had the biggest heart and we will miss him so much."

Mr Miller, who was friends with Mr Hazzledine for 15 years, said: "He was a keen motorcyclist but he loved lots of other things like sports, crickets and Nottingham Forest Football Club of course."

Energetic

"He was a fit, energetic guy who just loved life. He was the best mate I could ever had."

Mr Hazzledine ran an engineering firm and was a carer for the terminally ill before becoming a member of campus security.

Steve Howdle, professor of chemistry at the University of Nottingham, was a team-mate of Mr Hazzledine's for 28 years at the Beeston Old Boys football club.

He said: "He had a huge impact across so many people. Over 300 people came to his funeral, they had to play his song four times for everyone to get in."

"It just shows how loved he was."

The coroner concluded that Mr Hazzledine died as a result of a "tragic" accident.

Coffee shop will host open mic nights and other events to its monthly calendar

Business returning music to the town

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW coffee shop Esquires has started monthly open mic nights to bring music back to the town centre.

The Water Gardens outlet now has an alcohol licence and sells beer, cider, wine and even Prosecco in the evenings from Thursday to Saturday.

In addition to the Coffee Sessions-branded open mic nights, quiz nights have also become a fixture on their calendar.

Sharon Siracusa, shop manager, said: "The Square (music venue) closed and it has left a sad void in the culture of Harlow.

"We have set up events to bring local performers into the town centre. It is proving to be a great success and the place is packed.

"There has been so much positive feedback."

Acts are playing acoustic music, typically singing with guitars, at the live music nights where any performers are encouraged to play to as many as the café can hold.

Forward

Mrs Siracusa was looking forward to another open mic night last Thursday and there also opportunity for poets, speakers and story tellers to perform at the coffee shop.

Remarkably their keen audiences have been gathered through

A band perform an acoustic set in Harlow coffee shop Esquires little more than promotion on social media.

Mrs Siracusa is surprised at the success of the open mic nights in just a few months and said that town councillors have been coming along too.

"There is nothing like this in Harlow," she added.

"There is not a lot left in Harlow now everything is closing down.

"It is a nice place you can go to in the evening and feel safe. I have seen older and younger people there too enjoying what we are doing, they want to be part of the vibe."

Selection

In addition to the selection of coffee and drinks, Esquires also offers customers pizza and tapas to eat.

The next quiz night will be this evening (Thursday, September 14).

Mrs Siracusa said: "I am not corporate. I am trying to be more independent and give something back to the community."

"It is a positive thing and it is proving very popular."

The e-fit of the man police want to trace

Police want to speak to suspect in rape case

Officers release an e-fit of man

By Sophie Finnegan
star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THREE years on from the horrific stranger rape of a teenage girl in Epping, Essex Police have released an e-fit of a man wanted in connection with the attack.

The victim was walking in the Thornwood Common area on September 11, 2014 at around 5.30pm when she was approached by the man who asked her to help him find his dog.

He then led the victim to a secluded spot and raped her.

The victim reported the incident to the police in September 2016, and an investigation was launched by the Adult Sexual Abuse Investigation Team.

Essex Police have now released an e-fit of the suspect three years later.

DI Mark Barber, who is leading the investigation for Essex Police, said: "We are determined to pursue every investigative opportunity open to us in the search for the man who committed this offence."

"The area where the rape happened is a well-known spot, and there is a chance that someone may have seen either our victim or the suspect, but at the time may have not thought anything of it.

"We are releasing the e-fit, which we are confident is an accurate likeness of the man we want to speak to."

"Stranger rape is a very rare offence and this is being treated as an isolated incident."

"However, for those who have been the victim of any kind of sexual assault, the effects can be long-lasting."

"I would like to thank the young woman in this case for her bravery in coming to us to report it, and for supporting the investigation."

Contacting

"If you think you may have been in or near Thornwood Common on the day of the incident, and saw something which could aid our enquiries, please do not delay in contacting us."

"We would also encourage anyone who has been the victim of a sexual assault at any time to report this to us."

"We will do everything we can to make sure you and your family receive the best possible care and support."

■ Anyone with information is asked to contact DC Ben Rushmore at Grays police station on 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Can you help trade woman wanted in connection with fraud and burglary?

ESSEX Police have released an e-fit image of a woman wanted in connection to a burglary and fraudulent activity in Harlow after posing as a charity representative.

Police believe that the woman in question has been targeting vulnerable people in their homes claiming to be collecting donations for a charity.

Approached

On Bank Holiday Monday, August 28, the woman approached a house in Halling Hill, around 11am under the guise of a charity representative and asked to use the victim's toilet.

The victim, a woman in her late-80s, allowed the woman in but then heard her in an upstairs bedroom.

After confronting the woman and asking her to leave, the victim found several items had been disturbed in the bedroom though it appears as if nothing had been taken.

Officers also received reports later that day that a woman matching the same description had approached a number of houses in Long Ley, saying she was deaf and was collecting money for a deaf children's charity.

Charity

The woman didn't have any ID on her or charity information.

Anyone who recognises the woman or has any information is asked to contact PC Simon Roissetter at Harlow CID on 101.

Alternatively you can contact Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

You might get used to the sight of roadworks on Edinburgh Way

Driver frustration over roadwork restrictions

Barriers left in place when workers are not on site complaints

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ESSEX Highways has been slammed for the time it is taking to start and complete works along Edinburgh Way in Harlow.

Motorists face diversions along the A414 section near Tesco, which prevent customers turning right out of the supermarket. There is also a lane closure and temporary traffic lights.

Essex County Council Highways has come under fire from Church Langley resident John Allen who said he has seen "no action" taking place.

The works, which will not be completed until 2019, have been pushed back until mid-autumn following the discovery of uncharted utilities.

Mr Allen said: "I can fully understand the need for providing appropriate safety to workers during this process, but I fail to understand these traffic restrictions."

Questions

"Why is there a loss of the right turn from East Road when nothing is apparently happening within the roadworks?"

"Why should the motorists be subjected to these continued restrictions when it seems that the contractors are not on site every day?"

Mr Allen suggested that Highways could remove restrictions at times when contractors are not working, possibly at nights and/or at weekends.

He said: "The timescale for this project is already quite long."

"Are these days of apparent little or no activity factored into that timescale? Or are we already slipping the completion date?"

"There has been talk in the national press of contractors being 'penalised' where roadworks are left in place with no associated activity. Is this another example?"

"Maybe some goodwill shown by the contractors and the Highways department in removing the restrictions – when possible – would go some way to ease the problems for us all."

An Essex County Council spokesman said: "Preliminary works continue on Edinburgh Way in Harlow."

"There have been some delays due to the discovery of uncharted utilities which will need to be diverted by a third party and there is currently a restriction on right turn movements in and out of East Road to support the current works."

"The main works are set to begin in late autumn 2017, with an anticipated completion date of 2019."

Extended deadline after neck and neck voting in architectural design competition

The Pearson Building was last year's winning non-residential building

RESIDENTS have been given more time to participate in an "extremely tight," Harlow Architectural Design Awards competition (HADA).

The deadline for voting in the event to decide the best designed residential and non-residential buildings from the past year has been put back to Friday September 29.

Close

After 500 votes the result hangs in the balance and Paul McLintic, founder of the awards – which are run by Harlow Civic Society, is encouraging all to get involved.

He said: "We are delighted to have already received around 500 votes for the best new residential and non-residential buildings in the town, but the voting has proved to be extremely close."

"As a result, we have decided to extend the final voting until the end of September, so there is still time to make your vote count, and decide who will receive this year's trophy."

Once the polls close and all votes have been counted, the HADA panel will consider each building and, in light of the voting, select a winner in each category.

The results will be announced at a public awards ceremony on Sunday October 22, at Harlow Cricket Pavilion.

Jane Winfield, of headline sponsors Firms must be to win biggest

ALL applications for the Essex Business Excellence Awards have now been handed to the category sponsors, who have the unenviable task of judging them and choosing a final three and a winner.

One of such sponsors is Wortley Byers Law, which, as a long-established law firm based in Brentwood, has an outstanding reputation for first-rate service with a client base ranging from national, publicly-quoted companies to family-run businesses.

And this year the firm is significantly impacting the awards with its sponsorship. As well as supporting the awards as the Headline Sponsor, Wortley Byers Law is also placing its backing behind the biggest honour of the night – the Company of the Year category.

The Company of the Year award is highly regarded as the blue ribbon accolade of the awards, celebrating a company in any industry which has demonstrated a strong market share, economic turnaround and an innovative approach.

Leading

Speaking about the decision to sponsor this particular category Jane Winfield, commercial property partner and head of business development at Wortley Byers Law, said: "Wortley Byers Law prides itself on providing a commercially focused legal service delivery and, as one of the leading providers of legal services in Essex and the South East, it seems only right that Wortley Byers Law should be the judge of the Essex Business Excellence Awards Company of the Year 2017 category."

Jane continued: "We are delighted to be the sponsor of the Company of the Year 2017 award as part of the Essex Business Excellence Awards."

"The finalists and winners across each of the categories will have shown huge business potential and achievement to have gained that status. The finalists and winner of the Company of the Year category will demonstrate that something 'extra' which makes them stand out from the other successful businesses to make it to the final of the Company of the Year 2017."

Wortley Byers Law offers a full range of legal services and specialist advice in commercial property, corporate and commercial, employment and litigation law as well as the traditional areas of family, personal tax, trusts and probate and residential conveyancing. As a key player in Essex's business community and having made the region the company's home since 1967, Jane was quick to the praise of Essex and how the business community helps raise the profile of the region and wider UK.

She said: "Wortley Byers Law is based in Brentwood Essex and has a solid reputation in the business community throughout the borough, Essex, London and the South East in particular. At Wortley Byers Law we work closely with our fellow business professionals and clients in providing a first class standard of legal service delivery. Essex is known for its entrepreneurial and leading legal business Wortley Byers Law, will judge Company of Year 'extra' special prize of night

Jane Winfield says Wortley Byers Law is one of the leading providers of legal services in Essex and the South East spirit and the Essex business community is strident in raising awareness of the thriving nature and potential for doing business in Essex, London and the South East in particular.

Potential

"Flagship events within Essex are instrumental in raising awareness of the Essex business community and its potential for enterprise.

"These include county events such as the Essex Business Excellence Awards and Discovering Business Essex as well as local forums such as the Brentwood Business Showcase and Chelmsford Showcase. INVEST Essex, of which Wortley Byers Law is a business partner, is another example of a channel through which the profile of Essex is raised amongst businesses who are looking to relocate and/or expand from other boroughs and overseas."

The Essex Business Excellence Awards night is set to take place on Wednesday, November 29 at The City Pavilion in Romford. A truly unmissable event, at which there are still tables available to book.

Young basketball players at their refurbished court

Community event is a slam dunking success

THE newly refurbished Sumners Basketball Court was christened with a family tournament on Saturday, September 3.

Sumners Slam Dunk, organised by Harlow Young Labour, attracted children and parents living locally with free lessons in shooting hoops from Harlow Hawks basketball player Gareth Dickson.

Winners of the three-on-three basketball tournament each won two cinema tickets courtesy of Cineworld, while local lad Callum picked up a Decathlon trophy for winning the shooting contest.

Patrick Watts, a Harlow Young Labour member who led the organisation of the event, said: "I really wanted to make the event happen.

"There are areas of concern within the town and seeing everyone come together creates so much positivity. It was the best feeling when it all came together."

He expressed his gratitude to Decathlon for donating the basketballs used on the day which were given to Water Lane Primary School after the event.

A spokesman from Harlow Hawks said: "It's wonderful to see the community come together for a good cause.

"Some of the kids and parents may not have played basketball before or have had the opportunity, so hopefully we've provided a great experience for the kids and maybe get them more interested in playing sports."

Sandra Hayes has reached the regional final for the national competition

Sandra has sights set on Specsavers prize

A HARLOW woman has her eyes on the prize after being named a contender for Specsavers' Spectacle Wearer of the Year 2017.

In reaching the regional final for the third time Sandra Hayes, 62, was rewarded with a £150 voucher for new glasses, a bottle of champagne and her chance at a place in the national finals.

Ms Hayes has worn glasses for 30 years and would pick up a cool £10,000 if she goes the whole way and wins the Spectacle Wearer of the Year title.

She said: "I first entered the competition in 2015 when I saw it advertised in the Harlow Star and I thought it was a great idea, especially when I saw that they sponsor Kidscape, which is a really worthwhile charity.

"I thought if I entered then it would be another £1 for them and who knows, maybe I'd get a prize.

"I've got lots of pairs of glasses. These days you can get almost any frame in any colour and shape - there's a great variety now.

"I look at my glasses in the morning and pick them depending on how I feel. They're a fashion accessory as well as being functional."

Ms Hayes is one of thousands of proud glasses wearers from every corner of the UK and Ireland who have entered this year's competition by sending in specs selfies to their local Specsavers store.

The five age categories of 16-24, 25-34, 35-44, 45-59 and over 60, plus a Facebook favourite voted for by the public, have given the judges an insight into the country's specs style and the response has been amazing.

If Sandra triumphs in her age category of over 60s, she could meet former Girls Aloud star, Nadine Coyle, at the celeb-packed awards ceremony at London's 8 Northumberland Avenue on October 10.

She added: "Embrace wearing your glasses. Lots of people need to wear them and now there are so many different styles to choose from, go out and enjoy wearing yours."

Michael Rees, Harlow Specsavers store manager, said: "Sandra is well known at the store.

"We've even got a picture of her in our staff room from when she was selected last year.

"I'm really happy she's got to this stage again and I hope that this time she gets chosen to be the overall winner."

Terry Deacon and Carol Davis

Couple tie the knot in hospital ceremony

TWO long-time sweethearts finally tied the knot after 21 years together, inside Princess Alexandra Hospital.

Terry Deacon, 72, who has a terminal illness, proposed to Carol Davis, 72, and got married on the Locke Ward of PAH, Hamstel Road, Harlow, on August 24.

The ceremony was conducted by the trust's hospital chaplain Christian Okeke, who the couple said was very supportive.

A hospital spokesman said: "They had discussed marriage for some time and decided it was time to take the plunge.

"Former Whitehall government security officer Terry met Carol a former Bank of Scotland customer service officer, at a pub in Liverpool Street station in London.

"After chatting they discovered they only lived two miles away from each other. The Harlow couple said the secret to their long lasting relationship is that they enjoy life together.

She added: "Despite it being an emotional day for the couple, they sang the praises of the staff who are caring for Terry who has a terminal illness."

The team on their charity trek

Snowdon climb will raise funds for neonatal unit

NINE staff from Harlow security firm Land Sheriffs climbed Wales' highest peak, Mount Snowdon, for Princess Alexandra Hospital's neonatal intensive care unit.

They are hoping to raise £10,000 for infirmary in Hamstel Road, Harlow, and the ward which cares for premature and sick babies.

A Land Sheriffs spokesman said: "This legendary mountain race started at sea level in the stunning Caernarfon Castle and weaved its way to the summit of Snowdon and down the other side into Dinorwic.

"They were thrown an array of punishing obstacles, including the infamous Vertical Kilometre, to tackle before they crossed the finishing line a victorious 22 miles later."

A family affair

New York group New Kingston bring their progressive reggae sound to Southend this month. Martin Neal talks to this band of brothers

THINK brothers on stage in a band and two names leap out at you like an umbrella from a Mancunian's bag on an autumn day – Liam and Noel Gallagher.

Feuds, fights and F words – it was always going to end in tears for the Oasis boys.

But it doesn't always have to be like that for musical siblings. Just ask New Kingston, the New York touraholic reggae band comprising brothers Tahir, Courtney and Stephen Panton.

Oh and just for good measure the boys' influence and guiding light, dad Courtney Snr, joins them on bass.

But family friction? They won't hear a word of it.

"Everyone has their own opinion," says drummer Courtney Jnr, "that's part of life. If something is red, someone is going to want it to be blue.

"But when we are together we are all in agreement for the sake of New Kingston because New Kingston is our focus and our goal."

And you know what? It's hard not to believe him too. We get the chance to find out later this month when this family affair head across The Pond with their infectious brand of good-time reggae for a batch of UK dates, including one right here in Essex.

The Pantons, joined by guitarist Stephen Suckarie have been doing their stuff for more than a decade and fourth album Come From Far hit the shelves last month.

They've yet to break through this side of the Atlantic, but a tour supporting London's urban reggae trailblazers The Skins that calls in on Chinnerys, in Southend offers a new audience a chance of the New Kingston experience.

A band who clearly get a boombox-sized kick out of playing live, they've earned a reputation for being just as likely to be on stage somewhere as off it on any given night during the year.

And Courtney Jnr, for one, is very much looking forward to the forthcoming UK tour dates.

"We are really happy about it," he said during a break in the band's run of USA West Coast dates. "It gives us the opportunity to go out and show people what we are about."

"When we are on stage it's our family. It's a beautiful vibe."

"The coolest thing about being in music is taking our music out to different stages and taking it to new audiences."

The three brothers grew up listening to listening to dad's funk and reggae records so you'll find nods to those influences peeping out from a thoroughly modern sound.

Progressive reggae they call it and that's what it is – a musical progression of the family's Jamaican roots to the urban lifestyle of the Big Apple.

"Our sound is a mixture of old and new," said Courtney.

"There is no single influence. We live in New York City where there's every type of reggae possible, but we grew up listening to Earth Wind and Fire, Chaka Khan and music like that."

Find out for yourselves at Chinnerys.

SLICE OF THE PIE

CHICKEN
(SERVES 6)

INGREDIENTS

(508 calories per serving)
1 kg (2 lb) chicken
1.25 litres (2 pints) chicken stock
1 onion, quartered
1 celery stalk, thickly sliced
Pared zest and juice of 1 lemon
2 carrots
2 waxy potatoes, peeled and cut into quarters
45 g (1½ oz) butter
45 g (1½ oz) plain flour, plus extra for dusting
Salt and black pepper
125 g (4 oz) frozen peas
175 g (6 oz) shortcrust pastry
Beaten egg yolk, for glazing

REQUIRED EQUIPMENT

2 litre (3 ½ pint) pie dish

METHOD

1. Put the chicken, stock, onion, celery, and lemon zest into a large saucepan. Bring to a boil, cover, and simmer for 30 minutes.
2. Add the carrots and potatoes, cover, and simmer for about 20 minutes or until the vegetables are cooked and the chicken is just tender. Remove the vegetables from the liquid and set aside. Leave the chicken to cool in the liquid.

3. Remove the meat from the chicken, and cut into bite-sized pieces, discarding the skin and bones. Dice the vegetables.

4. Skim the fat from the cooking liquid, then bring 600 ml (1 pint) of the liquid to a boil. Melt the butter in another pan, add the flour, and cook, stirring occasionally, for 1 minute. Stir in the hot stock, whisking until it comes to a boil and thickens. Add the lemon juice and season with salt and pepper.

5. Stir the chicken, diced vegetables, and peas into the sauce, then leave to cool.

6. On a lightly floured work surface, roll out the pastry and cut out the lid, then fill, cover, and decorate the pie.

7. Bake in a preheated oven at 190°C (170°C fan, Gas 5) for 30 minutes or until the top is crisp and golden brown. Serve hot.

It's her Berry best cookbook

Baking queen Mary Berry has brought out the ultimate recipe guide

Mary Berry has updated her million-selling cookbook

IF YOU are missing national treasure Mary Berry on this year's Great British Bake Off, you might like to whip up some of her signature bakes instead.

The 82-year-old has just published her biggest ever cookbook containing more than 650 recipes.

Mary Berry's Complete Cookbook is an update of her million-selling recipe book, with stunning photography.

It offers endless inspiration from classics like Beef Wellington and Bakewell Tart to simple family suppers like three cheese macaroni, plus plenty of delicious cakes and bakes from Best Ever Brownies to pink almond macarons.

Mary says the book has been updated to reflect our changing lifestyles: "We lead busier lives, fulfilling greater dreams. We entertain less formally than in the past, but so much more comfortably, often in the warmth of a cosy kitchen where guests can chat with the cook and enjoy the fun of preparing a meal together."

"Travel has broadened our horizons, and gives us a taste for different foods."

Each page is packed with Mary's easy to follow instructions as well as calorie counts alongside each recipe.

Mary adds: "Now, we know what it means to eat well in the modern sense, downplaying butter and sugar and rich sauces, preparing healthier meals using natural ingredients, and letting their flavour and freshness shine through."

Here are three great recipes to try at home.

■ Mary Berry's Complete Cookbook is published by DK, priced £30 (DK.com)

I'M a bit dizzy as in the past two weeks I've made new wine discoveries and remembered old ones.

First, my new discoveries. Last week I went to Veneto in Italy, to visit the home of Soave white wines and some delicious reds from Colli Berici.

I'll share some wines with you in a couple of weeks, but for now, my first wine discovery was this; an Italian fizz based on a native grape called durella, which is made into a sparkling wine called durello.

I was slap bang in the heart of prosecco land and you know what, in four days I didn't sip a single glass of the stuff. I asked if durello was the new prosecco, but apparently it is little-known even in Italy. I was so giddy when I visited the wine co-operative Cantina Di Soave (which sits in the shadow of the Soave city walls and its castle) to be told by the team that they export a durello wine to the UK.

RAISE A GLASS

WITH JANE CLARE

Here it is folks. Left, Settecento33 Spumante Brut NV (£10, oddbins.com, 12% abv). If you love fizz, and you love trying new things, then give it a go. This fizz is a treat, with crispy apple and pears centre stage but layers of tangier fruit too, such as grapefruit and lemons. The grapes are grown in soils influenced by now extinct volcanoes and the wine has a mineral, upright edge.

Now, to remembering an old discovery. Many, many moons ago, when my wine life was but a dream, I visited Chablis and it was that trip which started me on this wine adventure. Chablis is in Burgundy, France, and the white wines are classic, with chardonnay grapes growing on vines which seek nutrients deep down in an ancient seabed. An entry-level wine is petit chablis and it is lovely to see one being released in Lidl's new French Wine Cellar range (due in shops on September 28). Domaine de Oliveira Lecestre Petit Chablis (£10.99, 12.5% abv), below, has aromas of lemon and crisp freshly sliced green apples, and just a flirt with springtime flowers. Petit chablis is the lowest of the four levels of Chablis wines and the simplest to embrace; then comes Chablis (the most common) the premier cru and finally grand cru. Other picks in Lidl's French range include an Alsace Vieilles Vignes Gewürztraminer (£7.99, 13% abv), a Rhône red, Mémoire du Terroir Cairanne Côtes du Rhône Villages (£5.99, 13.5% abv) and a tasty dry crémant, L'Éphémère Crémant de Limoux Brut (£7.99, 12.5% abv).

■ Also in my glass ... the previous crémant leads me on nicely to Tesco Finest Crémant de Limoux Rosé (£11) which I know in another life was voted one of the Sud de France Languedoc-Roussillon Top 100 wines (head to suddefrance-top100.co.uk to discover more).

I wanted to bring you this wine the other week in my crémant feature but as it was so new on Tesco's shelves (and hot off the press) I needed to confirm the price.

It is a blend of chardonnay, chenin and pinot noir and is dry, toasty, and laden with fresh redcurrants and raspberries. I sipped with a steak and salad and it was delicious.

INGREDIENTS

(576 calories per serving)
11 sheets of filo pastry
60g (2 oz) butter, melted

BEEF LAYER INGREDIENTS

30g (1 oz) butter
1 kg (2 lb) lean minced beef
1 tbsp plain flour
1 x 400g can chopped tomatoes
2 tbsp tomato purée
2 garlic cloves, crushed
1 tsp caster sugar
Salt and black pepper

SPINACH AND CHEESE LAYER INGREDIENTS

625g (1¼ lb) spinach leaves, tough stalks removed, roughly chopped
90g (3 oz) mature Cheddar cheese, grated
90g (3 oz) Gruyère or Emmental cheese, grated
125g (4 oz) full-fat soft cheese
2 eggs, lightly beaten

METHOD

1. Prepare the beef layer: melt the butter in a large saucepan, add the minced beef, and cook, stirring, for 10–15 minutes or until the meat is browned all over.
2. Add the flour and cook, stirring, for 1 minute. Add the tomatoes, tomato purée, garlic, and sugar, season with salt and pepper, and bring to a boil. Cover and simmer, stirring occasionally, for 35 minutes. Taste for seasoning.

3. Meanwhile, prepare the spinach and cheese layer: wash the spinach and put it into a large saucepan. Cook over a gentle heat until the spinach wilts. Drain thoroughly, squeezing to remove excess water. Mix the spinach with the Cheddar, Gruyère or Emmental, soft cheese, and eggs, and season with salt and pepper.

4. Spoon the beef mixture into a shallow ovenproof dish, then spoon the spinach mixture over the top.

5. Prepare the filo topping for the dish (see below).
6. Bake in a preheated oven at 200°C (180°C fan, Gas 6) for 20–25 minutes until the filo pastry is crisp and golden. Serve hot.

PREPARING THE FILO TOPPING

Brush three of the filo pastry sheets with a little of the melted butter and layer them on top of the spinach mixture, trimming to fit the dish if necessary. Arrange remaining eight filo pastry sheets over the dish, lightly brushing with a little butter and scrunching each one up, in order to completely cover the lower layer of filo pastry.

60g (2 oz) walnuts, coarsely chopped
125g (4 oz) carrots, grated
2 ripe bananas, mashed
2 eggs
1 tbsp milk

TOPPING INGREDIENTS

250g (8 oz) low-fat soft cheese, at room temperature

2 tsp clear honey
1 tsp lemon juice
Chopped walnuts, to decorate

REQUIRED EQUIPMENT

18 cm (7 in) square cake tin

METHOD

1. Lightly grease the cake tin and line the bottom with baking parchment.

2. Combine all the cake ingredients in a large bowl. Mix well until thoroughly blended. Turn into the prepared cake tin and level the surface.

3. Bake in a preheated oven at 180°C (160°C fan, Gas 4) for about 50 minutes until the cake is well risen, firm to the touch, and beginning to shrink away from the sides of the tin.

4. Leave the cake to cool in the tin for a few minutes. Turn out on to a wire rack, peel off the lining paper, and leave to cool completely.

5. Make the topping: mix together the cheese, honey, and lemon juice. Spread on top of the cake and sprinkle the walnuts over the top. Store the cake in the fridge until ready to serve.

Jennifer Lawrence feels threatened in Mother!

MOTHER! (18)

Oscar nominated writer-director Darren Aronofsky (Black Swan, The Wrestler) prepares to sharply divide audiences with this twisted psychological thriller, which poses more perplexing questions than it intends to answer.

A young woman (Jennifer Lawrence) is happily settled in the remote country home she shares with her husband (Javier Bardem), an acclaimed poet who has been struck down with crippling writer's block.

The lovebirds are far from their closest neighbours and immersed in their simple day-to-day existence. Their house has been lovingly rebuilt after a devastating fire and the young wife has taken on the responsibility of interior designing the property.

Out of the blue, an enigmatic stranger (Ed Harris) arrives at the house and the husband offers the man a room for the night. Soon after, the visitor's spiteful wife (Michelle Pfeiffer) materialises and violence percolates beneath the surface, exacerbated by the arrival of two brothers (Domhnall Gleeson, Brian Gleeson).

The young woman of the house grows increasingly concerned by the presence of outsiders in her carefully ordered world and she slowly loses her slender grasp on reality.

AMERICAN ASSASSIN (18)

You can't always exorcise the ghosts of the past as one tormented young man discovers in Michael Cuesta's testosterone-fuelled action thriller, based on the novel by Vince Flynn.

Mitch Rapp (Dylan O'Brien) is orphaned when his parents die in a car accident. To compound his misery, his high school sweetheart Maureen Eliot is killed in a terrorist shooting on a crowded tropical beach.

These losses drive Mitch into the arms of the CIA under the aegis of Deputy Director Irene Kennedy (Sanaa Lathan). She identifies his potential as a weapon of mass destruction against terrorist organisations around the world and assigns wily Cold War veteran Stan Hurley (Michael Keaton) to train Mitch.

Mentor and protege forge a close bond and they pool resources to investigate a series of seemingly random attacks on military targets. The two men identify a pattern in the killings, which leads to a mysterious and deadly operative nicknamed Ghost (Taylor Kitsch).

Mitch and Stan realise they will need assistance to bring down this elusive adversary so they share intelligence with a Turkish agent called Annika (Shiva Negar), whose disarming beauty conceals a stone cold heart.

Dame Judi Dench as Queen Victoria and Ali Fazal as Abdul Karim in Stephen Frears' heart-warming drama

The odd couple

Twenty years ago, Judi Dench beautifully captured the aching loneliness and dignity of Queen Victoria in John Madden's exquisite biographical drama, Mrs Brown.

At the formidable age of 64 years young, she won Bafta and Golden Globe awards for her dazzling performance and garnered her first Oscar nomination.

Undeservedly, Dench lost the golden statuette to Helen Hunt in As Good As It Gets but the following year, she emerged victorious, this time as an acid-tongued Queen Elizabeth, for Shakespeare In Love.

The diminutive national treasure effortlessly slips back into the regal garb of Queen Victoria for Stephen Frears' heart-warming drama torn from a long-lost page in history.

"Based on real events... mostly" declares an opening title card, raising the curtain on a comfortably warm and cosy script by Lee Hall (Billy Elliot), who has adapted the book of the same title by Shrabani Basu.

Set during the final five years of Victoria's turbulent reign, Frears' picture touches upon some of the same themes as Dench's earlier portrayal of the grief-stricken monarch, albeit with more humour.

Mrs Lighter Brown, if you will.

The year is 1887 and Queen Victoria (Dench) is comfortably installed as Empress of India, although she has never visited the domain for fear of assassination.

In Agra, two lowly men – Abdul Karim (Ali Fazal) and Mohammed (Adeel Akhtar) – are chosen by British authorities to present the monarch with a ceremonial gold coin called a mohor.

They travel to Windsor Castle and receive a crash course in royal etiquette from groom-in-waiting Alick Yorke (Julian Wadham).

Soon after, Abdul catches Victoria's eye – "I thought the tall one was terribly handsome," she coos – and the visitor is rapidly promoted to the monarch's spiritual advisor or "Munshi".

A relationship of mutual appreciation blossoms between Victoria and Abdul, to the consternation of her son and their apparent Bertie (Eddie Izzard), as well as private secretary Sir Henry Ponsonby (Tim Pigott-Smith), personal physician Dr Reid (Paul Higgins) and Prime Minister Lord Salisbury (Michael Gambon).

"I say he's the brown John Brown," cruelly sneers Baroness Churchill (Olivia Williams), one of the Queen's glowering companions.

Victoria & Abdul is a bittersweet and irresistibly charming chocolate box, filled predominantly with soft emotional centres.

Serious discourse about the impact of the British empire in late 19th-century India is conveniently swept under the palaces' Persian rugs.

Twinkly-eyed Dench is flawless, capturing the isolation and despair of her overweight, cantankerous ruler ("Everyone I've really loved has died and I just go on and on," she sobs) as well as Victoria's steely resolve when her son threatens to seize the throne by having her declared insane.

Screen chemistry with Bollywood hunk Fazal is delightful and the great and the good of the British acting establishment inhabit supporting roles with plummy aplomb.

YOUR HOME

Destination decor

Be inspired by those exotic, faraway places you have visited to create a holiday vibe all year round

Holidays may be just a memory but take inspiration from your favourite destination for your decor and you'll enjoy that vacation vibe all year round.

"Destination decor is on the rise as homeowners seek to evoke far-flung styles that last well beyond their travels," says Samantha Parish, interior design account manager at bed specialists Hypnos.

"What we see and experience on our holidays has an increasing influence on our homes. Few of us can resist a souvenir from our favourite or most interesting destination – choose well and it can be the inspiration for a whole new look, or simply add an instant international feel to a space.

"Soft furnishings such as bedding, rugs, curtains and throws can also change the dynamic of your interior, transforming it into anything from an Asiatic-inspired retreat to a Mediterranean getaway."

BRING THAT TROPICAL FEEL INDOORS

Jenny Hurren, founder of the eclectic Out There Interiors, says: "While many of us love the idea of an outdoors lifestyle, the climate in the UK can make it somewhat tricky.

"One way to achieve that sultry feeling is by embracing the tropical interiors trend as it allows us to create our own interior paradise that can be adapted all year round.

"Big leafy palms, rustic honey-coloured woods and touches of black conjure jungle vibes for every room of the home. Simply adapt with splashes of bright, vibrant tones for the summer months, and switch in plums and navy colourways for an updated winter feel.

"The jungle trend is a strong look, but surprisingly versatile, warming up the chilliest of UK days."

WORK THE CARIBBEAN THEME

Sian O'Neill, head of marketing and online at Topps Tiles, says: "Using memories from trips abroad provides ideal inspiration for homeowners, as they look to introduce exotic influences into their living space.

"The Caribbean vibe is particularly popular and can be easily emulated with the right colour scheme and accessories. This trend celebrates vibrant tones – from the lush greens of island foliage to the crystal blues of turquoise seas, the combination of these colours creates a space which radiates warmth and holiday happiness.

"Style-conscious homeowners should also consider incorporating accents of punchy pink – opt for hues of seashells and flamingo feathers for an attention-grabbing look.

"Once complete, homeowners will be able to immerse themselves in true Caribbean-style decor that lets them indulge in a year-round vacation from the comfort of their own home."

EMBRACE THE EASTERN PHILOSOPHY

Jenny Hurren believes an Eastern theme can be striking with its mix of extravagance and simplicity.

"Nothing says 'holiday' like an Eastern-style interior," she says. "Jewel colours, indulgently sumptuous fabrics and decadent patterns are perfectly suited to the neutral background of contemporary spaces.

"You can achieve a wonderful effect by combining extravagant detailing with simple black, white and bronze pieces, for an everyday look that's both usable and beautiful.

"Channel the riads of Marrakesh in your own home, with statement lighting and accent cushions, for a hint of holiday all year."

A grand design with an elegant entrance

YOU'D BE MADE UP WITH THIS NY BEAUTY

It makes sense that the founder of one of the world's biggest cosmetic brands would surround herself with beauty. And that's exactly what happened when Florence M Lewis, otherwise known as Elizabeth Arden, purchased No 4 Sutton Square in the 1930s.

The stunning five-storey townhouse in an exclusive development in New York and features mahogany panelling, galleried landings and stunning river views.

"The most unique aspect is that it is one of the 18 homes with exclusive access to the Sutton Square park, overlooking the East River," says agent Michael Passaro of Douglas Elliman Real Estate.

Built in 1921, this enclave of exclusive properties has been home to other well-known residents such as Aristotle Onassis, the heiress Anne Vanderbilt and Anne Morgan, the daughter of financier JP Morgan.

Calm and stylish

Elizabeth Arden's former home is currently owned by former Abercrombie and Fitch CEO Mike Jeffries. Since buying the house in 2006, Jeffries commissioned renowned architect Daniel Romualdez to carry out a three-year restoration project on the historic property.

The 4,000 sq ft house now features four luxurious bedrooms - two of which have cashmere-covered walls - four bathrooms, huge windows overlooking the manicured communal gardens and a split-level library on the top floor. There is plenty of room for staff, too, with the chef's kitchen in the basement and top of the range appliances.

■ The property is for sale at $16 million via Douglas Elliman Real Estate (00 1 917 806 8213).

The pool and house has beautiful surroundings

If any house could be a celebrity then this Tuscan-style mansion in the Holmby Hills neighbourhood of Los Angeles would be a candidate.

Owlwood is within one of the most sought-after areas of the city called the Platinum Triangle taking in Bel Air, Holmby Hills and Beverley Hills, and has been owned by a string of America's richest and most famous names. This includes Joseph Shennick, the founder of movie studio 20th Century Fox, oil millionaire William Keck and film star Tony Curtis, while Marilyn Monroe was once a house guest.

But its best-known owners were pop duo Sonny & Cher, most famous for their 1965 hit I Got You Babe, which helped them sell 40 million albums during their nine-year career together.

The couple, who were also partners in real life, divorced creatively and maritally in 1974, and while Sonny's fame waned, Cher went on to be a global acting and singing superstar, enjoying several career revivals. This includes her 1998 global chart-topping single Believe and appearances in several blockbusters including 1987's Witches of Eastwick and the 1994 film Pret-a-Porter.

If you'd like to turn back time and live in her former home then, for the extraordinary sum of $180m, it could be yours.

Referred to as 'The Crown Jewel of Holmby Hills', the main house has nine bedrooms, 10 bathrooms, two guard houses, a pool, garden house and - within its vast grounds - fountains, fruit trees and formal gardens.

Mark Twain remains one of America's most celebrated writers over a century after his death and is best-known for his Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn books. But his life was as dramatic as the stories he wrote.

Twain married wealthy heiress Olivia Langdon and had four children but their first-born died at birth and then Twain lost his - and most of his wife's - wealth after investing unwisely, after which he moved to Europe as the family's health declined.

He returned to the US to rebuild his finances but his wife died in Europe before she could return. Twain's brother was then killed in a steamboat accident, and one of his remaining children died of spinal meningitis. After his oldest daughter married and moved back to Europe, Twain lived with his youngest child, Jean, who was epileptic. In 1909 they moved to a Connecticut farm he had bought, only for her to die in her bath following a seizure. Twain died five months later - many say from a broken heart - aged 74.

The house is now for sale at $1.86m. It's a working hobby farm with 18.7 acres and a recently-refurbished five-bedroom house and a barn that has been converted into a movie theatre, games room and guest apartment.

During her brief life Marilyn Monroe was film and stage star, sex symbol, fashion icon and singer. But, despite her talents, global fame and huge fortune, by the time of her death aged just 36 in 1962 she was struggling with depression and a considerable drug habit. But there had been a brief window of happiness - on the day she married third husband, playwright Arthur Miller, in June 1956.

The marriage was over by 1961 and the couple, above, divorced, but biographers agree Marilyn was happiest at the time of their double wedding including civil and religious ceremonies, the latter which took place at the country home of Miller's

SCOTS KING TO VICTORIAN BLING

Robert the Bruce is a hero to many Scots for defeating the English at the Bannockburn in 1314. And, unsurprisingly, many people claim they are descendants of the warrior king; estimates put the number of people in the Bruce bloodline at 200 million, although just 496 of them are members of a Facebook group for those who can prove lineage.

Several famous people have been linked to him including US senator John McCain during his bid to become president of the United States in 2000, when a book he wrote claimed he was descended via his mother - a lineage rejected by Scottish academics.

A more solid and direct ancestor of Robert the Bruce is the 19th century businessman John Bruce, who commissioned a huge mansion to be built for himself in the Home Counties. South Park was completed in 1885 and later became a school for girls but by the early noughties, had fallen into disrepair. The property was recently bought by Newcourt Residential and has now been lavishly restored and converted into apartments decorated by Alexander James Interior Design. Built in the Domestic Revival and Queen Anne style, half-timbered with ornamental red brick facings and carvings, the house includes oak joinery, ornate plastered ceilings and stained-glass windows.

YOUR GARDEN

With Diarmuid Gavin

Shrubbing up nicely...

As autumn breezes in, hardy fuchsias lead a legion of beauties to brighten up September

With a gentle cooling of temperatures and a softening of the light, we welcome the start of autumn – and hope it will be a clement one as it's a wonderful time to be outdoors.

Walking in a country lane recently I saw sorbus trees laden with red berries, as well as shiny, plump blackberries ripening on the vine and rosehips swelling.

As the poet John Keats wrote, it's the season of mists and mellow fruitfulness. But there are also plenty of flowers to admire as well.

There are many beautiful herbaceous plants dancing in the borders – crocosmia, asters, rudbeckias, heleniums and sedum to name but a few – but this week I am going to celebrate the shrubs that shine in September.

Top of my list is the hardy fuchsia, F. magellanica. It's such an easy plant to grow despite its wonderful purple and red exotic Chilean flowers.

They thrive in sun or shade in any

Caryopteris

well-drained soil.

'Mrs Popple' is an excellent cultivar but I also like the graceful 'Alba' which has delicate white flowers, faintly tinged with pink.

'Tom Thumb' is a dwarf variety, perfect for patio or balcony.

Then there's the blue spiraea, Caryopteris. This is a lovely front-of-border compact shrub with terminal clusters of blue flowers – the more intense blue varieties are 'First Choice' and 'Kew Blue'. This is a particularly good species for chalky soil.

Grow in full sunshine to benefit from the scent of its aromatic leaves and for maximum flowers.

It's easily propagated from cuttings and most attractive to wildlife.

districts as their leaves are well adapted to repelling salt-laden winds.

Plant in moist, well drained soil in full sun or partial shade.

Plenty of pink blooms are also still being produced by the trustworthy mallow, Lavatera, and of course our old favourite, the hydrangea.

I have a relatively young Clerodendrum in my garden, and this year it has started to bloom with small white and maroon lily scented flowers.

These will be followed by bright blue fruits. If you crush the foliage, weirdly it smells of peanut butter. It is therefore sometimes referred to as the Peanut Butter Tree but is also known as Harlequin Glorybower.

It's a deciduous shrub, small at the can be found on Ceanothus 'Autumnal Blue' – a hardy evergreen ceanothus packed with sky blue flowers and Ceratostigma willmottianum – the hardy plumbago which produces azure flowers over a long period in autumn.

Hebes are a sometimes overlooked shrub, but there are some beautiful varieties – and 'Great Orme' which is currently in blossom is one.

It's an evergreen with narrow dark leaves and lovely long spikes of pink flowers from July to October.

Also known as shrubby veronica, hebes are often seen in coastal

Clerodendrum

Time for a tidy in your outdoor area

■ If the weather is pleasant, do a bit of a tidy up outside of fallen leaves and plants that have died back. Net ponds before leaves start falling.

■ Take semi-ripe cuttings of evergreen shrubs – eg hebes, camellias, choisya, holly, laurel and box – as well as herbs such as rosemary and lavender, and conifers. Choosing healthy material, cut about 4-6ins in length, just below a leaf and pot up as soon as possible. You can also do hard wood cuttings of roses now.

■ Apples are ready for harvest when you can gently tug them from the tree.

■ Plant biennials such as foxgloves and honesty for flowering next year.

■ It's a good time of year to establish new lawns or repair damaged areas. Feed established lawns with high potassium feed for autumn strength.

■ Perennial weeds in the borders or lawns can be treated with weedkiller this month.

■ Pot up prepared hyacinth bulbs and paperwhite daffodils to force for Christmas. They make wonderful gifts and house plants.

moment but it should ultimately grow to be a petite tree. Leycesteria, or the pheasant berry, was popular during Victorian times when it was widely planted as game cover for shoots. Its flowers at the moment are beautiful – white in drooping panicles of claret-red bracts.

These are followed by dark berries which pheasants seem to enjoy. However it can be a bit invasive, so it may be one of those shrubs which are nice to admire in someone else's garden!

Finally a couple of small trees that are blooming well. Aralia elata is an excellent tree for the pocket-sized garden and is currently producing its annual display of sprays of tiny creamy white flowers.

But the most eye-catching of all is

Hebes are sometimes overlooked – but there are gorgeous varieties...

Eucryphia which you just don't see enough of. It is smothered in big white showy flowers – the kind you would normally associate with springtime.

It does prefer acid soil which may account for its rare but outstanding appearances.

ASK DIARMUID

Q My Victoria plums are failing again.

They started falling in early June when approximately date sized.

This has continued until I have lost 80% of what had seemed to be a good year.

They have been well manured, watered with comfrey solution and winter washed.

I cannot find any answers in nurseries, garden centres or my gardening books.

Please help.

M Carr

Victoria plums

A Plums will naturally self thin in June – it's called June drop when the tree discards excess crops that it won't be able to sustain.

You can control this process by thinning the tree yourself the same month.

However, if you're losing a lot more fruit throughout the summer, there may be something else going on.

Sometimes the tree cannot cope with the amount of fruit because of lack of water and food, but you seem to have this covered.

Fruits may also drop because they weren't adequately pollinated – this can be weather related and/or a lack of insects.

Finally, inspect fallen fruits for any damage – maggots can cause a crop to abort.

PLANT OF THE WEEK

EUCOMIS AUTUMNALIS autumn pineapple lily

Eucomis is a perennial with strap-shaped leaves and a cylinder of white star flowers.

The crown is topped with a little hat of small leaves, giving rise to its pineapple moniker.

Although hardy, this South African beauty would benefit from some mulch cover in colder areas. It looks great in pots which could also be moved to a sheltered position in winter.

Plant in mid-May, 15cm deep in fertile, well-drained soil in full sun. For something different, Sparkling Burgundy is a purple-tinged version.

BACK TO THE FUTURE

The iconic E-Type Jaguar has been transformed into a zero-emission roadster with an electric engine

By Chris Russon

This is the E-Type Jaguar that could save classic cars from the scrapheap if petrol and diesel engines are banned.

The legendary sports car, famously described by Enzo Ferrari as the most beautiful car in the world, has been turned into a zero-emission roadster powered by an electric motor. And with a 0 to 60 acceleration time of just 5.5 seconds it is even faster than the original.

The E-Type Zero has been created by the Jaguar Land Rover Classic division at its works in Coventry – only a few miles from the Browns Lane factory where the E-Type was born – and was revealed at the JLR Tech Fest in London where the company set out its plans for a new age of motoring.

With the government indicating it wants to ban sales of new petrol and diesel cars from 2040 electric vehicles will become key to everyday travel and combat air pollution.

The battery powered E-Type was shown as JLR announced it would be including an electrified option on all of its models from 2020.

The company also showed off its first all-electric vehicle – the I-PACE SUV, which will be going on sale next year.

Looking even further ahead, the Tech Fest marked the debut of what Jaguar calls the Future-Type – an advanced EV which drives itself and can even be summoned to your front door.

As the transition starts, electrified models will come on stream in the shape of pure EV and hybrid vehicles alongside conventionally powered cars.

But converting the iconic E-Type to run on electricity shows that historic vehicles can be future-proofed to continue the glory years of motoring for generations to come.

We got the chance to examine the E-Type Zero at the Tech Fest where it was on static display.

It began life back in 1968 and as a so-called E-Type Series 1.5 – a halfway house model Jaguar made for a year as it upgraded the original E-Type prior to the introduction of the Series 2 in 1969.

Under the bonnet of the E-Type Zero is a 220kW electric motor replacing the XK engine which was the foundation of many a Jaguar from 1949 to 1992, used not only in the E-Type but also the XK120, the Jaguar Mk2 and the XJ6.

In the E-Type of 1968 it was a 4.2-litre straight six engine developing some 245bhp, resulting in performance of around seven seconds 0 to 60 and a top speed close on 150mph.

The power of the E-Type Zero is the equivalent of 295bhp and the conversion has seen 46kg shaved off the weight, improving performance considerably.

It has a range of 170 miles on a single charge and given the thirst of the original that's little different. Driven enthusiastically you would have been lucky to get 200 miles from the 14 gallons of fuel the E-Type carried.

With batteries slung centrally, the weight distribution of the E-Type Zero is unchanged and the charging point is below a flap on the rear wing as was the filler cap of the original. A full recharge from a domestic supply takes between six to seven hours.

An update is the use of LED headlamps to reduce energy consumption but at a glance the Zero is a true E-Type in every way.

Inside the cockpit it's a different story. The instrumentation has come from the high-tech I-PACE and comprises two display screens – one in front of the driver and the other in the centre of the dash.

The array of switches that was such a characteristic of the original has been stripped down to just four controls and the gear lever replaced by a rotary selector – there are no gears on the electric version just settings for forwards, park and reverse.

The wooden-rimmed, triple-spoke 16-inch diameter steering wheel and lengthy chrome handbrake are retained although the fascia is modernised to include lightweight carbon fibre in the trim – a pleasant blend of old and new.

Fired up, the E-Type Zero runs silently but under acceleration – as Jaguar demonstrated in a video of the car running at speed – it has a whoosh akin to a jet.

“Our aim with the E-Type Zero is to future-proof classic car ownership,” said Tim Hanning, the director of Jaguar Land Rover Classic.

“We have integrated the new electric powertrain into the existing E-Type structure, which means a conventional engine could be reinstalled at any point. We think this is essential as it ensures a period Jaguar remains authentic to its DNA.”

Explaining that the drive, handling, ride and braking were the same as an original E-Type he said that the electric technology used on the E-Type Zero could be fitted to any classic XK-engine Jaguar.

“We’re looking forward to the reaction of our clients as we investigate bringing this concept to market,” added Mr Hanning.

And with the E-Type now one of the most desirable classics in the world – rare examples have sold for around £500,000 at auction and a 1963 Lightweight fetched an astonishing $7.3 million when it went under the hammer in Scottsdale, Arizona earlier this year – the electric E-Type could be the classic of the future in more ways than one.

Hawks are soaring

Harlow made it four games unbeaten by holding high-flying Leiston

HARLOW Town continued their rise up the Bostik Premier table after picking up four more points in their last two games.

The Hawks held third placed Leiston to a goalless draw on Tuesday night, coming hot on the heels of a workmanlike 2-1 win over Tonbridge Angels on Saturday.

The hosts put in a solid performance and got off to the perfect start with a goal within two minutes.

Jared Small crossed from the right to Alex Read whose shot across goal was turned in from close range by Nigel Neita.

Tonbridge had a good chance to draw level when a missed clearance from Andre Mayasi, who was making his debut for the Hawks, fell to Joe Turner, but he scuffed his shot and it was collected by Tonbridge keeper Ben McNamara.

Hawks had a let off on 11 minutes when Tonbridge had a strong penalty shot turned down.

Dive

Alex Akrofi broke through on goal and Ibrahima Sonko came across swiftly to clear the ball. Although the attacker went tumbling the referee waved away the appeals and he was instead booked for diving.

The visitors were enjoying the better of the possession in the first half and had another good chance to score when Joe Turner and Tom Beere combined well to put Beere through, but McNamara saved brilliantly with his legs.

Tonbridge defender Liam Smith picked a cross up at the far side of the area, but his speculative shot from a narrow angle went over the bar.

With the half-on time whistle beckoning, Tonbridge equalised. Tom Beere's free kick from just outside the penalty area crashed off the underside of the crossbar and down onto the line.

It didn't look as though the goal was to be given, despite appearing to cross the line, but Alexander Akrofi reacted fastest to tap in and ensure there was no controversy.

The second half started at furious pace with play going from end to end.

Tonbridge's Beere and Turner both tried their luck from distance, but sent efforts over.

At the other Mayasi's low cross looked to be heading for the unmarked Jared Small at the back post, but Jeyasiva Sivapathasundram intercepted the ball to prevent a certain goal.

Alex Read then almost put Harlow ahead again when his shot was heading inside the post, but Tommy Whitnell was on the line to clear the danger.

Both teams searched for a winner. Beere tried his luck from 35 yards out, but his powerful shot sailed above the Harlow goal.

The winner finally arrived in the 74th minute when Andre Mayasi's inswinging free-kick was flicked on by the head of Alex Read, and the ball nestled in the bottom corner.

Tonbridge didn't throw in the towel and with ten minutes to go they had a great chance to restore parity.

Substitute Nathan Elder almost had an instant impact when a deep cross found him unmarked eight yards out, but he put the header wide.

This Saturday Harlow host Lowestoft Town in the FA Cup second round qualifying.

Relegation confirmed

HARLOW Cricket Club have been relegated from the Shepherd Neame Essex Senior League Division One after losing to South Woodford on the final day of the season.

Their opponents were on the same number of points and went down with a whimper rather than a bang, failing to put up any resistance to the South Woodford bowling attack and then losing their way with the ball in the field.

Having won the toss, Harlow decided to bat knowing that a win batting first could bring 25 points for victory and a slim chance of escaping the drop.

But the Harlow batsmen froze under the pressure.

With just four runs on the board, the normally reliable Ahmed Khawaja departed for a duck, clean bowled.

Alan Jones came to the crease and put on 22 before he fell with the score at 35.

Next was opener Hafiz Yawar Afzal who was out for 23 with the score 55-3.

After this it was downhill all the way with wickets falling on a regular basis including captain Rehman Ahmed (18).

Only number 10 Andre Riddell provided some resistance, top scoring with 25. He was last batsman to fall with the score on 123 from 46.1 overs.

With such a low score to chase down South Woodford new they had plenty of time to get a win and a slim hope of survival themselves.

Clearly they weren't in the mood to hang about.

They set about the task and chased down the Harlow score in just 20.3 overs without loss.

The defeat meant Harlow finished bottom of the league instead of South Woodford.

Warriors are sought

HARLOW Rugby Club staged a #Inner Warrior taster to introduce 12 ladies to the sport with a mix of fun activities and skills-based drills, culminating in games of tough rugby.

This was followed by a mini-tournament to celebrate the opening of the club's new home at Latton Park, with Harlow Ladies, who ply their trade in National Challenge South East North Two, playing against both Chelmsford and Cuffley from a level above.

Tries from Katie Boggas (2), Davina McLellan and Nichola Shambrook, plus a conversion from Boggas, secured a 22-19 win over Chelmsford, which was followed by a 26-5 loss to Cuffley, with Tracey Wedd scoring.

Any women or girls (aged 11 and above) interested in joining training sessions should email Ladies@HarlowRugbyClub.com or call 07890 632238 for more information.

Amorgie wins first title

STANSTED Tennis Club's finals day was well supported by spectators - even if they had to use blankets to keep warm whilst watching.

The morning started with both singles finals being played on adjacent courts.

In the ladies singles, Fiona Pye beat Lisa King 6-2, 6-2, while, in the men's singles Ross Armorgie won his first title, overcoming last year's winner, Chris Hollis 6-4, 6-3 in a match of contrasting styles.

In a very tense match Lisa King and Fiona Pye were victorious in the ladies doubles, beating Karen Ainsworth and Carol Cook 6-3, 6-4.

The men's doubles was a speedier affair, with brothers Brad and Ross Armorgie defeating Jon Budd and Simon Fox 6-3, 6-1.

Martyn Taplin and Daphne

Lunnon came out on top in the mixed doubles, probably the most hotly-contested of the finals, overcoming Phil Berry and Lisa King 7-5, 6-3.

The trophies were presented by Club President, Janet Hollis and club chairman, Chris Hollis.

Clare Murfitt collected the Roger Loveday Trophy, which is voted for by the committee and presented to the member who is the most-improved in the club.
